Hamptons regular Hillary Clinton and her running mate, Tim Kaine, hosted a party for some of their biggest campaign supporters at New York's Plaza Hotel this week. The get-together honored the Hillary for America finance leadership council. Invited guests included South Forkers Harvey Weinstein, Tory Burch, Alan Patricof and others.

Christie Brinkley

South Fork residents Christie Brinkley and Georgina Chapman joined fellow mothers Marie Brenner, Joanna Coles, Cynthia McFadden, Jamie Tisch and others in hosting a screening of Lion, an upcoming film from the Weinstein Company. Lion follows an Indian boy who's adopted after losing his family and searches for relatives years later, as a grown man. The exclusive event was held at Manhattan's Dolby 88 screening room.

Happy Birthday, Governor Andrew Cuomo! The Hamptons regular turned 59 last Tuesday. The birthday boy reportedly celebrated with a rooftop dinner party at Manhattan's Attic. Helping him ring in a new year were longtime girlfriend Sandra Lee, Robert De Niro, David Simon and Jeff Koons.

On the small screens: Promos for the 2017 Golden Globe Awards, hosted by Tonight Show host and Sagaponack resident Jimmy Fallon, are making the rounds online. In one of the promos, Fallon is trying to hold three Golden Globe statues without dropping them. The tagline reads, "A lot of gold to give." The annual awards show takes place January 8. Bravo's new series Summer House premieres Monday, January 16 at 10 p.m. It follows a group of nine 20-something New Yorkers as they party on weekends Memorial Day through Labor Day of 2016. The cast includes party kid Kyle Cooke, identical twins Ashley and Lauren Wirkus, war veteran Everett Weston, freelance reporter Cristina Gibson.

"Along with the New York Subway System, Hamptons Subway is the only underground transit system in the State of New York."

NO TO TUNNEL OF LOVE

Here's some alarming news. Subway Commissioner Bill Aspinall has learned that the aggressive new international company Tunnel of Love is about to announce an attempted hostile takeover of the Hamptons Subway system.

"I received a letter from their lawyers yesterday," said our Commissioner. It said "batten down the hatches, here we come."

Tunnel of Love, LLC was founded just two years ago as the result of the lightning-like merger of Disney, Fox News, Reebok, Häagen-Dazs, Maserati, DIRECTV, Viagra, Hooters and the Portola Mining Company of South Africa. It's far flung empire is now the largest provider of entertainment, diamonds and accessory industries in the world and it wants Hamptons Subway in order to convert it into its core business—"Tunnels of Love" amusement parks around the world. If they succeed, the subway service in the Hamptons would come to an end. The dollar-a-day mining workers from South Africa would come and pickaxe new tunnels to conform to their tried-and-true cookie cutter formula for Tunnels of Love everywhere. This facility would become an underground amusement park without parallel.

Tunnel of Love has been cited over and over for violations. They've been accused of not paying their miners, using illegal aliens, providing unsafe working conditions and, in the case of one Tunnel of Love ride in Tennessee, using a Ferris wheel that had not been previously inspected and approved by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

They, on the other hand, claim that Hamptons Subway is overvalued on the New York Stock Exchange—even though we have just been thrown off the New York Stock Exchange.

THE COMMISSIONER'S GREEN SOCK COLLECTION

I, Nancy O'Donnell, a reporter for The Hamptons Subway Newsletter, was fortunate last week to be invited to the gracious Southampton oceanfront home of our Commissioner Bill Aspinall to view the wonderful framed green sock collection he has on the walls of his basement hallway, which leads to his media room.

Mr. Aspinall, using his personal elevator, took us down to that hallway from the front reception room of his mansion.

"Every year, when I win the election to serve as our Commissioner for another year, I'm awarded the traditional green sock at the swearing-in ceremony, the latest of which was last Thursday."

This was his 11th consecutive win. Five green socks are behind Plexiglas in their stainless steel frames on one side of that hallway, and the other five green socks are on the other side of that hallway.

"Where will you put number 11?" I asked.

"The odd-numbered ones go on the left wall," he told me. "There are the first five. This will be number six. When I win the next election, it will be on the right to balance it out."

"Where, at this moment, is your 11th green sock?" I asked.

"At the framer, of course," he replied.

I want to thank everyone who arranged this private visit for me, and particularly Mr. Aspinall and his wife, Gladys, who so graciously accompanied us on the trip down that hall. Afterwards, the servants served us tea and cookies.

Below we recap two of the biggest stories to grace the Hamptons Police Blotter in 2016:

SUSPECT ARRESTED IN SHINNECOCK CANAL FISH KILL

The Hamptons Police Department has arrested Reb Raymer in connection with November's massive bunker fish kill in the Shinnecock Canal.

The scene was one of total devastation when locals found tens of thousands of dead menhaden, also known as bunker, floating on both sides of the Shinnecock Canal lock. First suspected to be a result of dissolved oxygen depletion in the waterway, it now seems one man may be responsible for killing all those fish.

The alleged culprit, Raymer, claimed responsibility for similar fish kills in the Peconic River back in June and July of 2015. At the time, Raymer said, "First I started picking them off with my 30 ought six, but those buggers kept comin', so when I ran out of shells I went after 'em with my fishing knife. And when the knife slipped and I dropped it into the river, I went to work with my bare hands."

According to Hamptons Police Department spokesman Larry Hirsch, detectives feel confident that they have their man. "Mr. Raymer has had a longstanding grudge again menhaden, or bunker," Hirsch said on Monday afternoon, pointing out that the suspect has claimed this particular species is responsible for killing his father, Bill Raymer Jr., who drowned after an attack by a particular aggressive school of bunker when his son, Reb Raymer, was just 9 years old. Hirsch says the Hamptons Police Department plans to prosecute him to the fullest extent of the law, though they're not quite sure he's actually broken any known statutes since bunker are baitfish. For now, he added, detectives are building their case.

QUICK FLIGHT TO THE KLINK

The Hamptons Police Department Submarine Unit (HPDSU) made its first arrest of 2016 in early May, well ahead of schedule, after a gutsy kiteboarder attempted to jump over its deck.

According to Hamptons Police Department representative Larry Hirsch, the HPDSU recently began running short trips on the decommissioned Virginia Class submarine—which the department acquired as part of a military surplus program last year—in order to prepare it and the crew for another season patrolling local waters.

"The suspect clearly wanted to make himself some sort of YouTube video star, but that won't be happening," Hirsch added. "We've confiscated all the recordings, and they'll never see the light of day." 🐼

The Walker

The Real Story Behind the Montaukett Stephen Talkhouse

BY DAN RATTINER

One of the great, legendary figures on the eastern end of Long Island was Stephen Talkhouse, a Montaukett man who lived between 1821 and 1879. He served as a soldier during the Civil War, and was buried with the honors befitting a veteran in a burial ground off East Lake Drive in Montauk, a lone grave, bordered by a fence of rocks. The remains of his house are also nearby, all within the bounds of Montauk County Park.

There is a photograph taken of him when he was in his prime. He carries a walking stick and he stares out at the camera intensely. This photograph serves as a larger-than-life-size backdrop on an interior wall of The Stephen Talkhouse, the well known music venue in Amagansett that bears his name today.

Stephen Talkhouse was famous for his long, legendary walks. Every day—you could count on this—he'd walk back and forth 24 miles each way between Montauk, East Hampton and Sag Harbor, often carrying letters or messages from one person to another and their replies back. Stone markers along the way would identify where he would stop at a certain time in the day. Today, parts of the Paumanok Path follow the routes he took.

He came up in my thoughts last night when I was using my cell phone to see what ought to be the best route to take to get from the Plaza in downtown Montauk to Long Wharf, Sag Harbor. The route and time, quite by accident, at first came up not for driving, but for walking. It would take 6 hours and 53 minutes. Yes, Stephen Talkhouse could do this round trip. He must have walked fast. It probably took him 10 hours for a round trip. One suspects he enjoyed it. And indeed, that's how he earned a living.

I then began to wonder just how long it took for other people, not known for their great walks, to get around the South Fork in those days. Today we can make that trip in a car in about 40 minutes. Back then, before the railroad, (Continued from page) before automobiles, there was horseback.

When someone in Sag Harbor, for example, contemplated the time it would take to get to Montauk, for example, they considered horses and buggies, stage coaches and riding a horse. In some ways, as I looked into this, going from Sag Harbor to Montauk back then was akin to going from the Hamptons to New York City today.

As for other means, there was the horse and buggy, which might take two and a half hours or a stagecoach that might take three hours.

Sag Harbor to Montauk, a distance of 24 miles, could be done in about an hour and five minutes on a fast horse going at full gallop. Of course, no horse is going to gallop all that way. He'd gallop a while, then walk, then cantor or trot. There would be hills to climb and ponds to wade across. This mode of transportation for that distance at a full gallop might be akin today to taking a helicopter from East Hampton Airport to the 33rd Street platform on the East River in Manhattan. It would be the expensive, fastest way to get from here to there.

I might note here that the Pony Express riders, way back then, out west, would charge along at a full gallop on a horse for 10 miles through the deserts and plains of the western states. Then the rider would hop off—it would take about 20 minutes—and a new rider with a fresh horse would carry the mail another 10 miles, while the first rider would go back the way he came, on a different fresh horse, carrying the mail to his starting point that morning.

Advertisements in the newspapers for Pony Express riders noted the applicant had to be under the age 18; thin and wiry, not afraid of danger—Indians, bandits, terrain, foul weather—orphans preferred. (According to Wikipedia.)

Getting back to how a person on the East End might think in those days, if he were a fit rider and had a good horse, he would allow an hour and a half for a trip of 20 miles, stopping occasionally along the way. Thus could a young Montauk cowboy court a farmer's daughter in Sag Harbor.

As for other means, there was the horse and buggy, which might take two and a half hours, or a stagecoach that might take three hours. That was about it for getting from here to there.

By the way, New York City was pretty much out of the question back in Steven Talkhouse's day. If you did want to go, though, you'd probably take a schooner or cargo ship out of Hampton Bays. Manhattan would be 10 hours away—think a trip to Hawaii—but it might be fairly pleasant if the weather was good.

So where did Talkhouse fit into all this?

Undoubtedly, the fastest way to get a piece of mail from Sag Harbor to Montauk, other than horseback, would be aboard a coach pulled by a team of horses. A coach, as I said, could do the 24 miles in maybe three hours. There'd be a fee if you were a passenger, delivering a letter or a package or crate.

Talkhouse, the letter carrier, would take seven hours and be cheaper. Furthermore, he could talk to someone he was delivering to and return with a reply the same day. He provided a viable competition to the horse and buggy or stagecoach.

All this came to an end, of course, when the railroad came out to the East End of Long Island. This was in 1871 in Southampton and 1890 through to Montauk. Cars and trucks came into regular use around 1915. Of course, horses were used for certain jobs for quite some time after that. I remember seeing some horses on the road when I was a little boy in the 1940s.

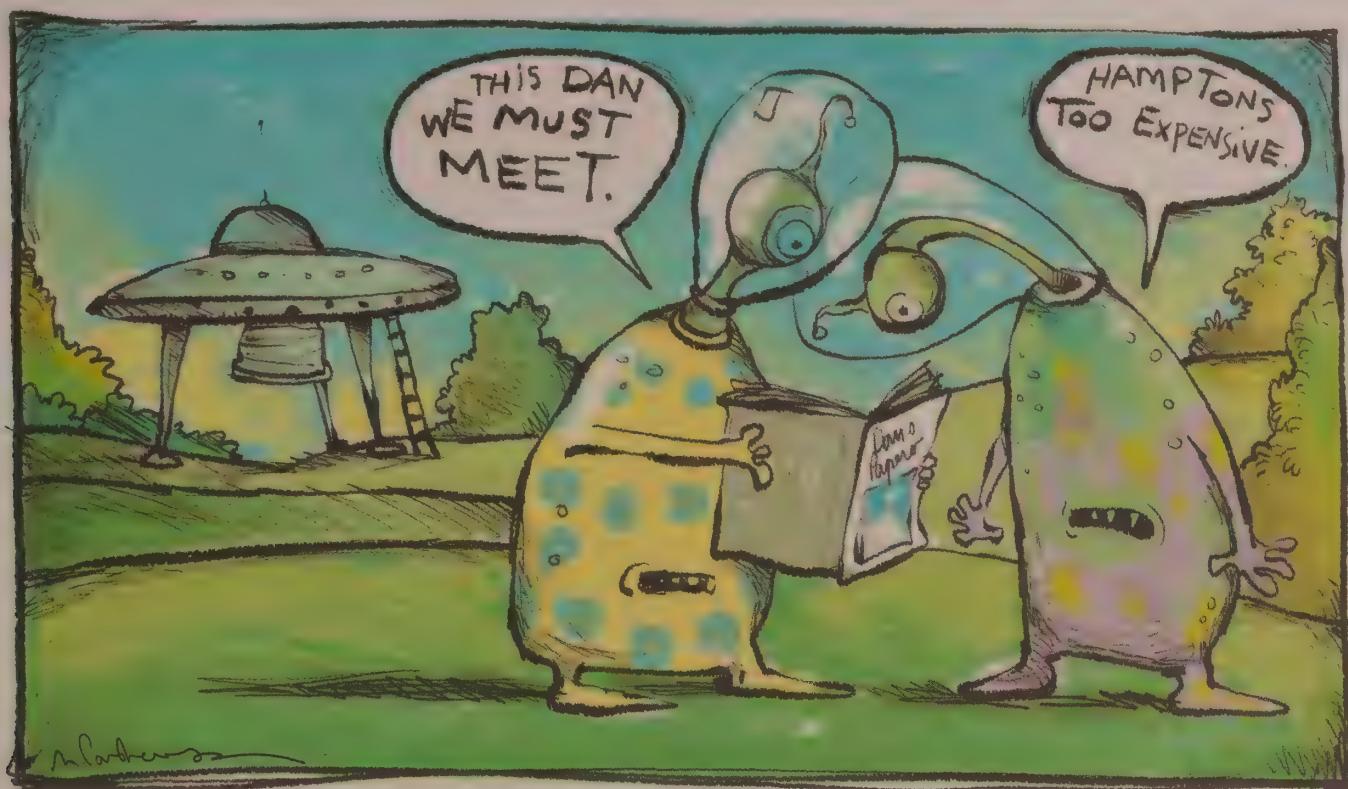

Talkhouse would take seven hours and be cheaper—he provided competition to the horse and buggy or stagecoach.

Interestingly, when I moved out here in the 1950s as a teenager, I sometimes came across local people who had never been to New York City. Like their parents and grandparents before them, their whole world was the eastern end of Long Island from birth to death.

Why bother with New York? 🐉

Aliens Invade

And Then Two Competing Alien Invaders Invade. What Do We Do?

BY DAN RATTINER

The aliens invade. The military can't stop them. They take over the Earth. But then, an ordinary man, someone just like you and me, discovers the aliens' secret weakness and, after rescuing a girl, puts his discovery into effect and drives the aliens away.

The aliens invade. But then some other aliens invade on the other side of the Earth. The military can't stop either of them, and so the aliens take over, each on their side, and post sentries on the border between them and peace prevails. However, an ordinary man, someone just like you and me, discovers the secret weakness of each of the different groups of aliens and, after rescuing a girl, puts his discovery into effect and gets the aliens fighting with each other until they are both so devastated and exhausted that they fly away.

The aliens invade. They offer to make peace, but a bull-headed general in the military, defying orders from the President, attacks the aliens and kills all of them. As a result, a second group of aliens from the same planet arrives on the other side of the Earth, declares themselves to be invulnerable to Earth's weapons, fights and kills the general. But then, an ordinary woman, someone just like you and me, discovers the secret weakness and, after rescuing the President, puts it into effect and causes the second group of aliens to fly away. They take the President with them. Also, his dog. It's very sad. He meant well.

Some aliens invade the moon. They find the American flag that the astronauts set up there in 1969, tear it down and set it on fire. As a result, the military sends five rocket ships with soldiers to the moon, but the aliens hide in some craters and the soldiers can't find them. Ultimately, the soldiers run out of air and leave. After that, the aliens come back out, tear down the second American flag (the soldiers put up a new one) and set it on fire, and this time put up their own flag. But then, an ordinary man, just like you and me, discovers a weakness in the aliens, and after rescuing the President's dog, puts the discovery into effect by sneaking into an astronomer's observatory at night, with his girlfriend, re-adjusting the telescope and firing a laser at the Alien flag, causing it to burn up. The aliens fly away.

Some aliens land on Mars. A meeting is called of the United Nations, and it's decided that since it would take two years to fly to Mars, we should forget about it. Soon after that, however, a second group of aliens, from a different planet than the first, land on Venus. A new meeting is called of the United Nations and, since Earth is now caught in what could be a crossfire, if these two groups of aliens tried to fight with each other, it is decided that something must be done.

The aliens invade. They offer to make peace, but a bull-headed general in the military, defying orders from the President, attacks.

The earthlings embark on a 10-year program to create invasion forces to go by rocket to each planet, but then an ordinary woman, just like you or me, makes radio contact with each group of aliens, learns that there is a mutual language spoken by these two groups that can only be understood by the President's dog, and, after rescuing a young soldier, she goes with him and the President's dog to the White House, where they are both arrested. Here, deep in the Presidential bunker's prison cell, they survive—he and she and the dog—a preemptive strike by both groups of aliens. Soon afterwards, they emerge into the dusty sunlight of a ruined earth to embark upon a loving attempt to re-establish humankind by starting a family.

The end. 🐕

REAL MONTAUK

TV MONTAUK

Summer Shares

A TV Series Premieres on Bravo, a House Is Rented & a Fish Story

BY DAN RATTINER

Next month the TV show Summer House will premiere on Bravo. It was filmed in a four-bedroom house on the bayside of Napeague and is designed to show a total of nine shiny, young upper-middle-class New Yorkers who've rented shares in this house for the summer. Their intent, it seems, is to behave as badly as possible every weekend with loud music, random sex, wild parties and lots of alcohol far into the night.

The crew of Summer House tried mightily to get a permit to film in public places in Montauk this past summer. They went to the town and were turned away. They went to such local establishments as the Shagwong and 668 and the Gig Shack and were turned away. Montauk is a family town, a fishing resort, a surfing community and a retreat for the rich and famous. Yes, there are party animals. But nobody wanted Montauk splashed all over cable as a place where that's all it was about, all that mattered and nobody gave a damn.

Eventually, they rented a house at 90 Harbor Road, on the arc of the bay in Napeague. It's pretty quiet there. People clam or go sailing. The renters were said to be five people, two of whom were members of the same family. Now that summer is over and it has been learned that this was not really a family place—that nine randy, young people slept in this house, or at least went to bed here, all summer—there's not much to be done about it. It's unlikely those renters would get a permit to do this again in 2017. But who knows?

The producers also got permission to film their show at several other private locations on the East End, including several businesses, as you will see in the trailer. But mostly it's about tits and ass, sandy bottoms and alcohol and wild partying. The producers reportedly said they were making an effort "to help Montauk." Help it do what? Become The Jersey Shore?

Also, at the present time, the house is for rent for next summer. It's in Napeague, just to the west of Montauk, and is bordered on one side by Napeague State Park and Hither Hills State Park on the other, with the pebbly bay beach right outside.

For next summer, Corcoran and Nest Seekers have it listed for rent for $110,000 June and July; $135,000 for July through Labor Day; $80,000 for August to Labor Day; or $165,000 from Memorial Day to Labor Day. It's a Nantucket-style shingled home with a deck and trellis, a media room, a spa and pool. Other amenities include a hot tub and barbecue area where you can hang out, as did Kyle Cooke, Ashley Wirkus, Lauren Wirkus, Everett Weston, Lindsay Hubbard, Cristina Gibson, Stephen McGee, Carl Radke and lots of guests and friends last summer.

Also, I am not positive, but I think this is the house that one of my best friends (also named Carl) bought some years ago. He and his wife purchased it for quite a bit of money, and I recall going to the housewarming party held there that first year.

It was a lovely affair with about 30 people—grownups—hanging around, holding glasses of Champagne and eating canapés served by waiters. There had been (Continued on next page) a big clam-and-lobster dinner with spaghetti and corn and ice cream. The seafood was bought absolutely fresh at Stuart's Seafood Market earlier that day.

A few days after this party, however, a strange smell became apparent in the house. Nobody could quite pinpoint where it was coming from. Indeed, it seemed to be everywhere. The trash was taken out. Professional cleaners were brought in. A mold-detection company came in on the third day. Another company came in to look for rot. But the smell just got worse.

On the fifth day, Carl and his wife decided the seller of this house must have known about this smell. The seller had cheated them, they said, held back in telling them about this. They should be held liable for it. They hired a lawyer who filed legal papers on the seller. They also filed papers against the real estate lawyer who had sold them the property and, finally, the title and transfer company and the house inspection outfit that had cleared the house on their behalf.

On the ninth day, the smell was so bad that Carl and his wife decided they needed to move out. Carl called me up and asked if I could come by to help pack things up that evening. He told me they'd all be wearing masks. I said sure.

As it happened, I was up on a step stool in the kitchen changing a light bulb that had gone dark above a counter next to the refrigerator when I saw a paper bag on top of the back of the refrigerator.

"What's this?" I asked Carl from up there.

"I don't know," he said.

It turned out to be a bag of fish that had been put up on top of the refrigerator for a moment the night of the lobster-and-clam-dinner housewarming party 10 days earlier. It was supposed to go into the refrigerator. But whoever had put it up there, while putting other things in, had forgotten about it. We partied on.

Carl and his wife lived in the house for years after that and this story became a family legend. There was, of course, absolutely nothing wrong with that house. It was a wonderful house. Ultimately, as the price for the house went through the roof, they decided to sell it and take the profit—and did.

This was that house right there on the bay in Napeague. I think. 🐾

This Week's Cover Artist: Keith Mantell

BY BRIAN CUDZILLO

recently to see what he was up to nowadays.

This week's cover artist, Keith Mantell, is no stranger to Dan's Papers. The Long Island native has been living the dream of being a full-time artist since 2007 and has appeared on more than a handful of our covers since then. We caught up with Mantell forces me to think quicker, paint more spontaneously and, hopefully, create a different type of painting that is looser and closer to the truth. Truth defined as what I see and how I convert it to a painting, so the viewer can sense what and how I see and maybe convey a feeling too. There's a lot of thought that has to be juggled and problems resolved as the painting progresses. I like that challenge.

When it comes to your landscape work, do you go out blind, looking for inspiration? Or do you know exactly what you're looking for and where?

I just wing it, drive around and see what hits me. If I can access a spot that looks promising, I go for it. Sometimes I spend hours driving around and nothing looks good. Other days I can find something in 10 minutes. Sometimes a spot looks terrible one day then the next day it's like "Hey, wow, look at that!" Sometimes I swing by and check out a place I've been to previously before I continue exploring. Every day of every season has possibilities.

Where do you go on the East End for the best plein air painting?

There are too many [places] to list and some I don't want you to know!

You've been involved in art in one way or another your entire life. Is there one piece of advice or wisdom you received from another artist that you've always carried with you?

An artist should recognize the growth each painting represents and not be so enamored with what they do today.

A teacher once instilled in me something I now pass on to my students: "Everything you do is a piece of shit!" What he meant was that an artist should recognize the growth each painting represents and not be so enamored with what they do today. Tomorrow's painting will be better because of today's efforts.

What piece of art have you not seen yet, that you would most like to see?

Off the cuff: Manet's "Olympia" or Vermeer's "Girl with a Pearl Earring." There's so much great art—and some questionable stuff—I want to see. I love all types of art and learn from every experience I have from those up-close and personal interactions.

We are obviously big fans of your work. Is there somewhere our readers can go to see it up close and personal?

You can see my work at the William Ris East at 1291 Main Road in Jamesport. You can also visit williamris.com and keithmantell.com.

This piece seems like a departure from what you normally do. Can you talk about your inspiration for this?

It's only a departure in that it's a holiday still life. I do a lot of landscapes. I love doing figurative pieces and setting up a still life every so often, but I usually do one piece this time of year that I can use as a holiday card. This piece has some family heirlooms so I put them together, threw in some ribbon and, hopefully, designed a decent composition.

A lot of your work is plein air. Is that your preferred method of painting?

I have no preferred method. It depends on what I'm painting. Sometimes a work demands to be a studio piece that needs a period of time to develop. Getting outdoors

Foodie bites: Sonja Morgan, Hamptons regular and co-star of Bravo's Real Housewives of New York City, now plans to open a new Topsy Girl restaurant in Hartford, CT. Thanks go out to Nick "The Yogurt Guy" Trastelis, who stopped by the Dan's Papers Southampton offices last Tuesday with samples of his delicious Kalypso Yogurt for all. The new flavor—Blueberry Lavender—was a partiucular hit with our staff.

Quogue's Eli Manning was nominated for the 2016 Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award. It's the seventh time Manning has been nominated for the award, which recognizes one player from each team for his outstanding charitable work. Among other organizations, Manning is involved with the March of Dimes, the American Red Cross and the Eli and Abby Manning Children's Clinics at the Blair E. Batson Hospital for Children in Jackson, Mississippi. The Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award winner will be announced on February 4.

Congratulations, Madonna! Water Mill's favorite "Material Girl" received Billboard's 2016 Woman of the Year Award during the magazine's 11th annual Women in Music event in New York City last Friday. In her acceptance speech, Madonna said, "As women, we have to start appreciating our own worth and each other's worth. Seek out strong women to befriend, to align yourself with, to learn from, to collaborate with, to be inspired by, to support, and be enlightened by."

East End rock royalty turned out in force to the Stephen Talkhouse on Wednesday, December 7, to raise money for local drummer Dave Giacone. A large and boisterous crowd heard music from Gene Casey, the Hoodoo Loungers and the Nancy Atlas Project—plus an impromptu set featuring Rick Davies of Supertramp and Mike Reilly of Pure Prairie League. Best of all, Giacone himself was on stage most of the night, playing percussion. The highly successful event was organized by Sag Harbor's own Joe Lauro.

Southold resident Brady Rymer and his group, the Little Band That Could, received a Grammy nomination for Best Children's Album last week. Press Play, the recognized album, is Rymer's eighth, and many of its songs were inspired by the musician's love for his hometown.

On Wednesday, December 14, the East End celebrated the half-century birthday of Sag Harbor's greatest living puppeteer, Liz Joyce, at the home of Christine Sciulli and Carter Burwell in Amagansett. It is possible that the party is still going on. All attendees agreed: she doesn't look a day over 49!

Booking it: East End regular Dava Sobel appeared on NPR's Science Friday last week to promote the sale of her latest book, The Glass Universe: How the Ladies of the Harvard Observatory Took the Measure of the Stars for holiday gift giving. Last Friday Marvel Comics announced that Sag Harbor's R.L. Stine, most famous for his kid-friendly Goosebumps horror stories, is writing a five-issue Man-Thing series. The comics will debut in March.

Dan's Best of the Best green architect Pam Glazer and her partner, Blair Dibble, are holding a private holiday party in David Hersh's new Rhum restaurant in Patchogue on Friday. The uniquely designed Rhum is just one of the completed projects that they're celebrating. Glazer hasn't been seen out in public much this year as her business expands rapidly—in fact she's seeking to hire an additional architect in the new year. Green is cool!

BOOK REVIEW

Sandy McIntosh's latest—a memoir.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

ART EVENTS

See and be seen on the East End scene.

TSR Celebrates Local Artists & Writers

BY BRIAN CUDZILO

TSR: The Southampton Review, the literary and art journal published bi-annually by the Stony Brook Southampton MFA Program, is back with its 10th Anniversary Edition. As usual the journal has published an eclectic and exciting mix of poetry, fiction and nonfiction, alongside visually stunning art and cartoon portfolios.

In the current issue, former U.S. Poet Laureate Billy Collins and Timothy Liu, two well-established poets with more than 20 published books between them, make up only a fraction of the great poetry. Other poets include current MFA candidates Afua Ansong, Jordan E. Franklin, Adrian Bonenberger and Mitchel King.

Other MFA student work includes short fiction by Lauren Harvey, Caitlin Mullen, Nicole Hebdon and Jeordie; as well as nonfiction by Martina Clark.

Readers will also be treated to new work by local favorites—and MFA faculty—Roger Rosenblatt and Jessica Soffer, whose short and powerful piece, "Apricot Tart" might bring a tear to your eye.

Then there's that artwork, all of which pops right off TSR's glossy pages. From the surreal, ghostly figures of Julio Reyes to the abstract patterns formed by rivers, icebergs and shorelines as captured in the photography of Jonathan Smith, the editors have almost outdone themselves. Also included are art portfolios by local artist Scott Bluedorn, Gigi Mills and Corinne Geertsent, whose painting "Stopping by Woods" is featured on the cover.

The issue also includes cartoon portfolios by The New Yorker contributor Michael Maslin, as well as Matt Collins and Grant Snider, whose hilarious comic, "adventures of the ampersand," can be seen in full on the journal's website, along with other excerpts.

Copies of TSR can be purchased individually or as part of a subscription at local bookstores, by visiting thesouthamptonreview.com or emailing editors@thesouthamptonreview.com. Gift wrap, gift messages and shipping are available at no additional cost. An open submission period for the next issue of TSR will open February 1, 2017.

Before it was Stony Brook Southampton it was Southampton College. And as a young writer attending the school in 1970, Sandy McIntosh, now the author of over a dozen books on poetry, business and cooking, had the great opportunity to learn from an exceptional group of artists living in the area. His new book A Hole in the Ocean—A Hamptons' Apprenticeship (Marsh Hawk Press) is full of his amusing and engaging recollections of the great—and near-great—artists and poets who washed ashore here.

The book is full of episodes illustrating—in illuminated prose—the informality and wildness of these unique relationships. There was the time he was driving on Springs Fireplace Road in East Hampton and almost hit Willem de Kooning, who was haphazardly riding his bicycle and ended up off the road under some trees. McIntosh packed de Kooning's bicycle in his backseat and drove the artist to his farmhouse opposite Green River Cemetery in Springs. He met the poet H.R. Hays, who was to be his freshman advisor, in the school parking lot; turned down a cocktail from Truman Capote at Bobby Van's in Bridgehampton; was visited at home (at one point he lived across the street from painter John MacWhinnie on Moses Lane in Southampton) by the abstract painter Ilya Bolotowsky, who was there to convince him not to publish a story about a film they'd just finished making, which Norman Mailer was tangentially connected to.

A Hole in the Ocean is a beautiful written recollection of a simpler time on the East End when main streets were quiet even during the summer and one could hear "the crashing of the ocean waves a half-mile away." e.e. cummings said "A hole in the ocean will never be missed." Neither should this book. 🐟

For you, family and friends.

Five Local Books for Holiday Gift Giving

BY BRIAN CUDZILO

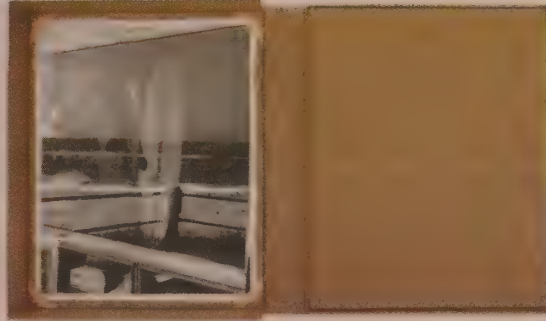

Struggling to find the perfect gift this holiday season? You can never go wrong with a book. No matter who you're buying for or where their interests lie, there's a book for that. And they're easy to wrap! We've collected a handful of great book ideas sure to pique the interest of your favorite Hamptophile.

The End

Seen on the coffee tables of A-listers like Ralph and Dylan Lauren, Paul McCartney and Calvin Klein, The End by Michael Dwek is perhaps the sexiest coffee table book of the year. With a print run of only 300 copies, the $3,000 Art Edition will appeal to collectors of fine photography who will relish the opportunity to own a signed, numbered, limited edition volume. This edition, printed and bound in Italy, comes packaged in a handmade, cloth-lined clamshell case with one of three silver gelatin prints, also signed and numbered. Of the 275 photographs included, 260 are duotone, made with a special treatment that produces exquisite tonal range and density. The 15 color photographs are color-separated and reproduced in the finest technique available.

Surfing 1778 - Today

It may not be the best time of year to catch a wave, but there's no better time to splurge on your surf-crazed loved one. Surfing 1778-Today (Taschen) is the most comprehensive visual history of surfing to date, tracing its the evolution from the first recorded European contact to the global phenomena it has become today. At just under 600 pages, with more than 900 images, including articles from the world's leading surf journalists, this luxurious book proves that surfing is not only a sport, but a lifestyle.

East Hampton

East Hampton is the newest addition to the Arcadia Publishing Postcard History Series. Featuring more than 200 original postcards from the various hamlets, East Hampton is a charming and nostalgic visual history of one of the country's premier summer spots. Transport yourself to Lily Pond Lane as it looked in 1917, the now majestic trees mere saplings. Beachgoers of the early 1900s, clad in wool bathing costumes and straw bonnets, grace many postcards in the back of the book. A postcard sent in 1907 depicts a man removing blubber from a whale, serving as a vivid reminder of the area's seafaring past. Beautiful shots of Hamptons mansions, some gone, some now hiding behind hedges, are peppered throughout.

Hidden History of Long Island

Did you know the first train/car collision happened right here on Long Island in 1901 when racecar driver Henri Fournier's $9,000 ($240,000 in today's dollars) vehicle was struck at a rail crossing in Westbury? Or that Hempstead Plains was so instrumental in early aviation that it became know as the "Cradle of Aviation?" These are only two of a plethora of intriguing facts to be mined from the expertly researched and thoroughly interesting new book Hidden History of Long Island (The History Press) by Richard Panchyk. Find out what other history is hidden in your own backyard this holiday season.

The Hamptons

If there's one thing Michael Clinton knows, it's travel. If there's another, it's photography. He's traveled to every continents and over 100 countries, writing and taking pictures all the while. Now, Clinton turns his eye to the Hamptons. In the process he transforms ordinary, every day objects and scenes into inspiring and insightful images. From empty, rock-strewn beaches to windmills and produce-filled farmstands, Clinton shows the East End in all its everyday, idyllic grandeur.

GIVE YOUR CHILD A HEALTHY SMILE

Many parents don't realize how early dental problems can occur, or just how important those "baby teeth" are!

Prolonged and frequent bottle or breast feeding can cause baby bottle tooth decay. Diets high in sugar from fruit roll-ups, sticky candies, juice and soda can also cause lots of cavities. Thumb and pacifier habits can cause malformations of the palate.

Children are not done losing their baby teeth until they are 12-13 years old! These teeth hold the spaces for permanent teeth, shape your child's face, and help with speech, eating and chewing.

Dr. Nancy Cosenza specializes in dentistry for children from infancy to their teenage years. At Hampton Pediatric Dental Associates, we know that not only children, but their teeth, are entirely different from adults. In fact, pediatric dentists require 2 years' additional training and education beyond dental school!

(There are only 5,000 pediatric dentists in the U.S. and we're the only pediatric dental practice in the Hamptons!)

Our office is colorfully painted and cheerfully designed a definite "kid-friendly" environment. Our staff is genuinely warm and cheerful too!

Call us at (631) 287-8687 if you have any questions or would like to arrange an appointment.

Remember that good dental habits and experiences started in childhood will last a lifetime! We know how to make kids leave the dentist's chair smiling -- and their parents, too!

Entertain Yourself this Holiday Season!

BY STACY DERMONT

On Wednesday, December 14, I gave another of my cooking demos at the Rogers Memorial Library in Southampton. The presentation was billed as "Entertaining Ideas for the Holidays." But a funny thing happened on my way to Christmas—Thanksgiving.

Ever since my son was little, I've made a big Thanksgiving spread and this has become my favorite holiday—because I get to cook all day, uninterrupted.

Now my son is all grown up and it's just me and the husband poking around the house. So when our neighbor, Brett King, invited us over for the Thanksgiving repast, we decided to give that a try.

Best. Thanksgiving. Ever.

Brett cooked TWO turkeys and sent us home with SCADS of leftovers.

A new holiday tradition was born—taking it easy.

So this is the sum total of my ideas for the holidays—entertain yourself with things that you enjoy cooking and that smell terrific. I give a couple of recipes for such things below. Apple butter is easy to make and impresses your friends when you home can it for giving.

Holidays bring carcasses and, with them, the opportunity for making easy stocks.

Both of these recipes require little active cooking

How to make an apple into a butter? Easy!

time on your part—in fact I suggest cooking both of these in a crockpot overnight and waking up to their many possibilities.

Easy Apple Butter

Yield: about 4 half-pints

6 pounds apples, quartered, pared and cored (about 18 medium)
½ cup apple cider
1 cinnamon stick

Special equipment: 4-quart crockpot boiling water bath pot, rack, lifter; prepared half-pint canning jars, lids and rings

Place all ingredients in crockpot.

Cover.

Set cooker to High.

Heat for 1 to 2 hours, until rapidly cooking.

Reset cooker to Low.

Remove lid.

Allow to reduce for 8 to 10 hours.

Can be stirred down with a wooden spoon periodically.

Remove crock from cooker.

Ladle hot butter into hot jars, leaving ¼" headspace.

Wipe jar rims with clean, damp paper toweling.

Place lid on jar and adjust band to fingertip tight.

Repeat until all jars are filled. Place jars in boiling-water canner.

Mary's Marvelous Amagansett Lease Available

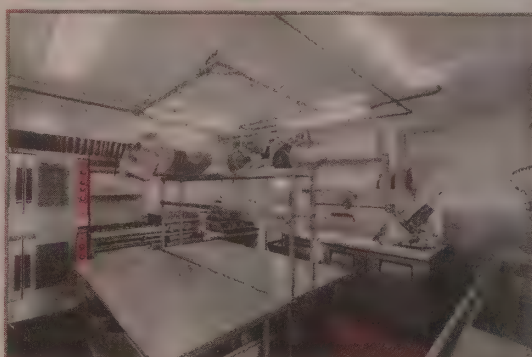

BY OLIVER PETERSON

Mary's Marvelous in Amagansett, the first of the business's two locations, is closing its doors and hitting the local real estate market as a long-term lease for $625,000 in key money. The deal, through Douglas Elliman brokers Richard Kohr and Lori Macgarva, includes all existing equipment, but not the property or the Mary's Marvelous name, which will carry on in their popular East Hampton location at 105 Newtown Lane.

Offered as a "valuable business opportunity," the shop includes 1,100 square feet of prime Main Street retail space in a high traffic area with a dedicated customer base on .05 acres. The one-story building at 270 Main Street in Amagansett currently has retail and kitchen areas, as well as additional exterior storage and outdoor patio space for customers to enjoy. This storefront location can continue to operate as a food operation, or it can be refit for other retail possibilities.

"The value is the use of the space," Kohr said last week. "There are only so many wet use stores out there," he added, pointing out that "wet use" permitted food establishments are much harder to come by than "dry" retail space. "It might be something else, but it's really set up for [food use]," Kohr noted.

The broker explains that the deal is essentially the same as buying a business, not a property, but the key difference is the exclusion of the Mary's Marvelous name. Still, a similar use would be likely to draw upon the many folks who already frequent the shop in Amagansett.
